ISO 14001 Case study for hospitals: How to identify environmental aspects. A 2015 study in the United Kingdom by the National Health Service showed that on average £1994 ($2867) was spent per head on medical services and treatment. Given the numbers of hospitals in most of western society and the huge footfall through the doors to use medical services it is clear that the amount of goods and services purchased and resultant environmental impact will be potentially huge.
