Ismaël Aït Djafer's Wail of the Arab Beggars of the Casbah is an underground classic on French oppression in Algeria. On October 20, 1949, in the city of Algiers, Khouni Ahmed, a tubercular beggar is walking along Rue Franklin Roosevelt. He hasn't eaten. He's holding his little daughter, Yasmina, 9, by the hand. A truck approaches.

On October 20, 1949, in the city of Algiers, Khouni Ahmed, a tubercular beggar, is walking along Rue Franklin Roosevelt. He hasn't eaten. He's holding his little daughter, Yasmina, 9, by the hand. A truck approaches. Suddenly, he pushes the child at the wheels. As she doesn't die, he pushes her a second time... Prosecuted two years later in criminal court, Ahmed is declared insane and committed to an asylum. As Jack Hirschman comments in his introduction, these events "inspired the writing, in the French language, of one of the most important poems of the 20th century, the Wail of the Arab Beggars of the Casbah. Dedicated to 'those who have never been hungry,' the poem was written by a 22-year-old student, Ismael Ait Djafer. It was printed in a small pamphlet edition by the Democratic Union for a Free

Algeria in 1951. Its circulation was largely local; but in 1954 Jean Paul Sartre published it in his Paris magazine, Les Temps Modernes; and in 1960, the year of Algerian independence from French colonial rule, it was published in book form by Pierre Jean Oswald Editions."

In this fourth volume of the landmark Poems for the Millennium series, Pierre Joris and Habib Tengour present a comprehensive anthology of the written and oral literatures of the Maghreb, the region of North Africa that spans the modern nation states of Libya, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, and Mauritania, and including a section on the influential Arabo-Berber and Jewish literary culture of Al-Andalus, which flourished in Spain between the ninth and fifteenth centuries. Beginning with the earliest pictograms and rock drawings and ending with the work of the current generation of post-independence and diasporic writers, this volume takes in a range of cultures and voices, including Berber, Phoenician, Jewish, Roman, Vandal, Arab, Ottoman, and French. Though concentrating on oral and written poetry and narratives, the book also draws on historical and geographical treatises, philosophical and esoteric traditions, song lyrics, and current prose experiments. These selections are arranged in five chronological "diwans" or chapters, which are interrupted by a series of "books" that supply extra detail, giving context or covering

Poetry. Between a Cadillac and a Valiant sitting idly in the snow, Ammiel Alcalay's SCRAPMETAL takes a provisional journey through the experience of work and the untangling of vampiric forces that sever life from our record of it. Part primer and part example, SCRAPMETAL offers a method of attacking the "inflationary poetics" that deafen us in the "steady hum of overproduction."

Covers the literatures of Algeria, Angola, Benin, Botswana, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Congo, Egypt, Ethiopia, Gambia, Ghana, Guinea-Bissau, Guinea, Ivory Coast, Kenya, Lesotho, Liberia, Malagasy, Malawi, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Mozambique, Nigeria, Reunion, Sao Tome, Senegal,
